Pope to youth: Spurn 'spiritual desert'

MANILA—Pope Benedict XVI on Monday said in "Summa Fides" that young people should not be afraid of the "spiritual desert" and should instead embrace it as a place of growth and discovery.

The pope's message to young people was part of a series of addresses during his visit to the Philippines. He urged them to seek God in the "desert" of their hearts and to find Him there.

Speaking to a group of young people, the pope said that the "desert" is not a place of emptiness but a place of encounter with God. He encouraged them to have faith and to trust in His love.

RESPONDING TO PRESIDENT MACAPAGAL ARROYO's appeal, oil firms in the country, led by the Asian Refining and Petrochemicals Inc. (ARPI), have agreed to reduce the price of diesel by P1.50 a liter effective on July 31, 2006.

The oil firms, including ARPI, Shell, and others, have agreed to the price reduction as a response to the president's appeal. They said that the reduction is a temporary measure to ease the burden on consumers.

The price reduction is expected to save consumers about P1.50 for every liter of diesel they purchase. The firms said that they will continue to monitor the market and will adjust prices as needed.

The lawmaker said that the profits were high despite the price reduction. He said that the firms had managed to maintain their profit margins by increasing their sales volume.

The lawmaker also said that the government should consider taxing the profits of the oil firms to generate more revenue for public services. He said that the profits were a source of wealth for the firms.

These authors suggest that the use of a single, standardized instrument to measure the construct of self-esteem is insufficient to capture the complexity of the construct. They argue that self-esteem is a multidimensional construct that can be measured at different levels of abstraction. For example, they suggest that self-esteem can be measured at the level of the individual, the group, or the organization. They also suggest that self-esteem can be measured at different levels of specificity. For example, they suggest that self-esteem can be measured in terms of general self-esteem, or in terms of self-esteem related to a specific domain (e.g., academic self-esteem).

The Fight Continues

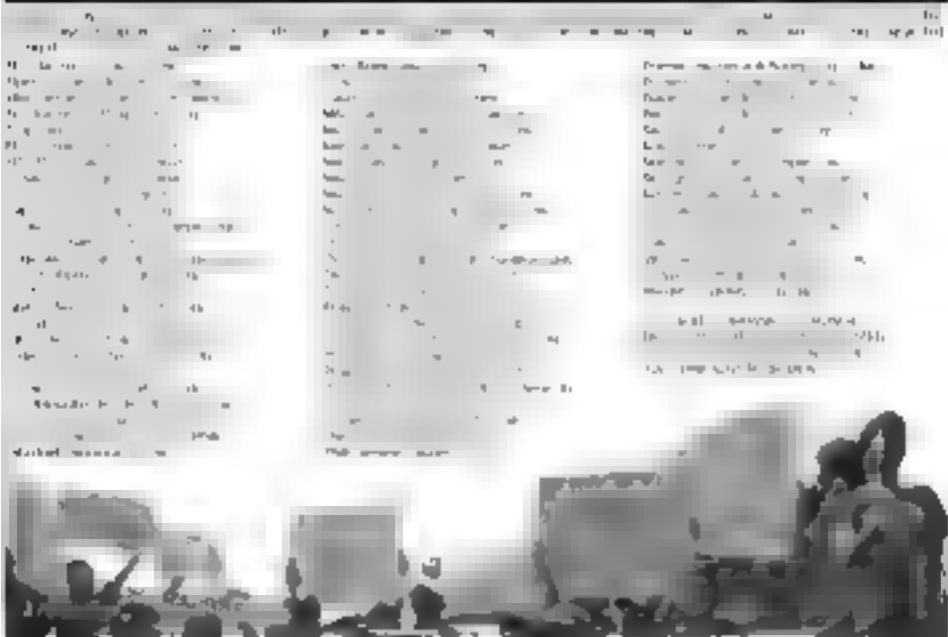

The Philadelphia Insurance Guaranty Association, the umbrella organization of non-life insurance companies in the country, will continue to fight the government's shameless plan to take over the Compulsory Third Party Liability (CTPL) insurance for motor vehicles.

The insurance industry is in turmoil owing to the draconian and Machiavellian measures GISIS is employing to confuse the public and to drive a wedge and foster enmity among industry players.

This is not just a fight for our basic right to do business. This is a fight against government intrusion into private business. This is a fight for PRINCIPLES and ETHICS. Reiterate the position that the GISIS espouses involving unjustly paid life insurance and intermeddles with the will of the deceased. It is a fight for the insuring public and the Filipino people at large at large through the insurance. And the GISIS and its ministers are reading. We put our trust and hope that the truth will prevail and that good will triumph over evil. As the saying goes, by their fruits you shall know them.

We reiterate and stand by the following:

1. The GISIS Monopoly is unconstitutional.
2. The GISIS Monopoly is not good for the insuring public as all other insurance companies have proven themselves to be thorough insurers.
3. The GISIS Monopoly goes against their very own charter which prohibits them from eliminating the private sector insurers.
4. The implementation of the GISIS Monopoly will go against the Insurance Code that states that government agencies are not to interfere in the insurance industry.
5. The GISIS Monopoly takes away the business of licensed agents and brokers and this will result in loss of jobs and livelihood during these hard times.
6. The GISIS Monopoly will be a precedent and will give the GISIS the audacity and impetus to go after other monopolizing businesses of the private insurance industry like conglomerate mutual and two insurance policies.
7. The GISIS Monopoly will not be regulated like other industry players. The GISIS is not under the supervision of the Insurance Commission. Where then will the motorcycle life (up) companies?

Net 'hot' money outflows hit $417M

Petron expands depot

By Abigail L. Ho

MANILA, Philippines (PNA) — The net outflow of "hot" money from the Philippines reached a record high of $417 million in the first nine months of 2009, according to the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) today.

The BSP said that the outflow was driven by a combination of factors, including the depreciation of the Philippine peso against the US dollar, the high interest rate differential between the Philippines and the US, and the global economic slowdown.

The BSP also reported that the outflow of "hot" money was concentrated in the first quarter of 2009, when it reached a peak of $1.1 billion. The outflow then declined in the second and third quarters, but it rose again in the fourth quarter to $417 million.

The BSP said that the outflow of "hot" money was a concern for the Philippines because it could lead to a shortage of foreign exchange reserves, which could in turn lead to a depreciation of the peso and a loss of confidence in the Philippine economy.

The BSP said that it was taking steps to address the outflow of "hot" money, including by increasing the foreign exchange reserves and by implementing measures to attract foreign investment.

This process is based on the logic of value innovation, which is the idea that a company can create value for its customers by offering them products or services that are both innovative and profitable. Dr. Robert C. Brown, President, Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn, New York, is the author of Engineering Management (McGraw-Hill, 1964, $4.95). This book is a practical guide to the management of engineering projects, covering the entire range of engineering management from the selection of personnel to the management of the project itself. The book is written in a clear, concise, and practical style, and is suitable for use by both students and professionals. It is a valuable addition to the literature of engineering management.

While there is no one-size-fits-all solution, the following guidelines may be helpful in determining the appropriate design choice for a given situation. The guidelines are based on the findings of the study and are intended to be used as a starting point for further research and development.

Education begins at home

By David S. Thompson for PHILLY

Even after it's been explained by parents, teachers and all of the other people involved in education, it's still a fact: A lot of what we know about education is still a mystery.

At the same time, it's also a fact that we know a lot about education. We know that it's a complex system, one that involves many different people and organizations. We know that it's a system that's constantly changing, one that's always evolving. We know that it's a system that's full of challenges, one that's full of opportunities. We know that it's a system that's full of hope, one that's full of possibility.

But what we don't know is how to make the most of all of this. We don't know how to make the most of the challenges, the opportunities, the hope, the possibility. We don't know how to make the most of the system. We don't know how to make the most of the education.

Technology shift for all-girls' school

Technology is a key part of education, and it's a key part of the education of girls. At the same time, it's also a key part of the education of boys. But what if we could make the education of girls even better? What if we could make the education of girls even better? What if we could make the education of girls even better?

At the same time, it's also a key part of the education of boys. But what if we could make the education of boys even better? What if we could make the education of boys even better? What if we could make the education of boys even better?
